

Larson-Notari Award For 2009

CRES annually recognizes individuals who have made significant contributions to the field of renewable energy, energy efficiency, and sustainable buildings through the Larson-Notari award.

The Larson-Notari Award is named in honor of Dr. Ronal Larson and Paul Notari, two founding members of the Colorado Renewable Energy Society (CRES) in 1996.

The CRES Board of Directors selects each year's winners from nominations submitted by CRES members. The winners must live in Colorado but do not have to be CRES members. Nominations are confidential, and CRES notifies only the winners that they were successfully nominated. CRES gives each award winner a handsome plaque, which is thanks to a generous donation from Pieter van der Mersch, who was a resource-conservation advocate since the early 1970's, and his wife, Martha van der Mersch.

The 2009 nomination deadline has been extended to June 26th, 2009.
